PLENARY SPEAKER

Freeman Hrabowski

FRIDAY, JULY 13, 2007, 2–3 P.M.— LEVEL 2–VENETIAN BALLROOM F–K

Freeman Hrabowski has served as president of the University of Maryland: Baltimore County (UMBC) since May, 1992. His research and publications focus on participation and performance of African American males.

UMBC actively promotes economic development in the Baltimore region, through its research, technology commercialization, and strong connections with the corporate community and public agencies.

Hrabowski serves as a consultant to the National Science Foundation, the National Institutes of Health, and universities and school systems, nationally.

Examples of recent awards and honors include being elected to the American Academy of Arts and Sciences and the American Philosophical Society, receiving the prestigious McGraw Prize in Education, receiving the U.S. Presidential Award for Excellence in Science, Mathematics, and Engineering Mentoring, being named Marylander of the Year by the editors of the Baltimore Sun, and being listed among Fast Company magazine's first "Fast 50 Champions of Innovation" in business and technology. He also holds honorary degrees from a number of universities, including Duke University, the University of Illinois, Gallaudet University, the Medical University of South Carolina, and Binghamton University.

Hrabowski is coauthor of two books published by Oxford University Press, Beating the Odds: Raising Academically Successful African American Males, in 1998 and Overcoming the Odds: Raising Academically Successful African American Young Women, in 2001.

A child-leader in the Civil Rights Movement, Hrabowski was prominently featured in Spike Lee's 1997 documentary, Four Little Girls, about the racially motivated bombing, in 1963, of Birmingham's Sixteenth Street Baptist Church.

Born in 1950 in Birmingham, Alabama, Hrabowski graduated at the age of 19 from Hampton Institute with highest honors in mathematics. He received his M.A. in mathematics at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, and four years later his Ph.D. in higher education administration/statistics, at age 24.

CLOSING SESSION PLENARY SPEAKER

Frank McCourt

SATURDAY, JULY 14, 2007, 1:15–2:15 P.M. LEVEL 2 - VENETIAN BALLROOM F–K

Frank McCourt, acclaimed memoirist and Pulitzer Prize winner, was born in New York City and raised in Limerick, Ireland, in the 1930s and 40s. At the age of 19, McCourt returned to the United States to seek a fortune and an education. After graduating from New York University's School of Education and supporting himself with several odd jobs, he found a brilliant career as a New York public high school teacher.

In September 1996, after he had retired from teaching, McCourt's memoir of his childhood, Angela's Ashes, was published by Scribner. It quickly rose to the top of the hardcover best seller lists, remaining on the New York Times list for 117 weeks. It was also selected as the number one nonfiction book of the year by Time and Newsweek magazines.

Angela's Ashes won many awards, including the Pulitzer Prize, the National Book Critics Circle Award, the ABBY Award, The Los Angeles Times Book Prize, and was chosen by many newspapers to be on their lists of Best Books of 1996. It also received Britain's Royal Society for Literature Award and became a hit movie based on the book in 1999.

In September 1999, McCourt published the follow-up to Angela's Ashes, titled 'Tis: A Memoir, which hit the New York Times best seller list at number one, as did the paperback edition. For a time, 'Tis and Angela's Ashes were simultaneously at number one in hardcover and paperback respectively. 'Tis received the New York Society Library Award and Italy's Riccardo Bacchelli Award.

In November 2005 McCourt wrote Teacher Man: A Memoir which immediately jumped to number one on the New York Times best seller list.

McCourt's acclaimed musical revue, The Irish and How They Got That Way, ran for more than a year at the Irish Repertory Theatre in New York. And, the two-man play A Couple of Blaguards, continuously plays throughout the United States, Canada, and Australia.
