Chief Executive Officers' Perspectives on the Current Business Environment for Utilities Under Challenging Conditions

Introduction: The country's current economic conditions introduce a complicating factor for investor-owned electric utilities already confronting a host of challenges ranging from evolving market models to anticipated environmental compliance costs, compounded by the need to increase capital expenditures for system maintenance and upgrades. How will these multiple challenges looming on the horizon be met? This panel will address these subjects, with an emphasis on how regulation can facilitate or impede the current operating environment.

Moderator: Fred Butler, Commissioner
New Jersey Board of Public Utilities, and President, National Association of Regulatory Utility Commissioners

Panelists:

Paul J. Evanson, Chairman, President & CEO – Allegheny Energy
James Laurito, President & CEO – New York State Electric & Gas and Rochester Gas & Electric
Jim Torgerson, President & CEO – The United Illuminating Company

Lead Respondent: Garry Brown, Chairman – New York Public Service Commission, and Chairman, NARUC Committee on Electricity

General Session

8:00 - 9:30 a.m.

The Impact of the Financial Markets on Returns and Capital Expenditures

Introduction: The global economy is experiencing a profound sea change in the capital markets, with diminished liquidity from traditional sources of capital, and tightening of requirements for access to needed capital. For electric utilities that have relied on this available liquidity to finance capital expenditures and operations, what does this mean? What is the capital markets' outlook under this new financial order? And what can ratepayers expect from its ultimate impact on utility operations and costs?

Moderator: Lawrence Brenner, Commissioner – Maryland Public Service Commission

Panelists: Jay Horine, Managing Director – JP Morgan Securities, Inc
Peter H. Kind, Managing Director & Global Head Power – Banc of America Securities LLC
Daniel F. Ford, Managing Director – Barclays Capital
David Springe, Consumer Counsel, Kansas Citizens' Utility Ratepayer Board, and President, National Association of State Utility Consumer Advocates

Lead Respondent: Robert E. Curry, Jr., Commissioner – New York Public Service Commission

9:30-9:45 a.m.

Refreshment Break

9:45-11:15 a.m.

The Impact of Climate Policy on Financial Markets

Introduction: Although the timing of enactment and the details still remain uncertain, little doubt remains that some type of new US greenhouse gas regulatory regime will be imposed, and electric utilities will be required to shoulder a share of compliance costs. How will the financial markets react to such a scheme, and what opinions do the experts share regarding potential winners and losers under various scenarios?

Moderator: Richard Morgan, Commissioner – District of Columbia Public Service Commission

Panelists: Michael G. Haggarty, VP & Senior Credit Officer -- Moody's
Eric Holdsworth, Director of Climate Programs – Edison Electric Institute
Hugh Wynne, Senior Utility Analyst – Bernstein Research, Inc.
Theodore Roosevelt IV, Managing Director – Barclays Capital

Lead Respondent: David L. Armstrong, Chairman – Kentucky Public Service Commission

11:15 a.m.-12:45 p.m.

Evolving Energy Policy

Introduction: The innovative laboratories of the states have now been joined by the Federal Government in attaching a high priority to energy efficiency, demand response, and smart grid technologies. A nationwide renewable portfolio standard may be next. What impact will these evolving policies, among others, have on the near and long-term outlook of utilities' business models, and how will the financial markets respond?

Moderator: Erin M. O'Connell-Diaz, Commissioner – Illinois Commerce Commission, and Vice-Chair, NARUC Committee on Electricity

Panelists: Lisa Wood, Executive Director – Institute for Electric Efficiency
Valerie Lemmie, Commissioner – Ohio Public Utilities Commission
Sam Brothwell, Managing Director – Wachovia Securities

Lead Respondent: David Coen, Commissioner – Vermont Public Service Board and NARUC First Vice-President

12:45 --1:00 p.m.

Final Thoughts on the Dialogue: The Commissioners Get the Last Word

Moderator: David Coen, Commissioner – Vermont Public Service Board and NARUC First Vice-President
